Robustos

Cohiba is the flagship brand for Habanos. The name is an ancient Taino Indian word for the bunches of tobacco leaves that Columbus first saw being smoked by the original inhabitants of Cuba - the earliest known form of a Habano. The brand was created in 1966 for the Cuban president Fidel Castro and since 1982 has been available in limited quantities to the public.

BOLIVAR

Belicosos Finos

Simon Bolivar was one of the great figures of the 19th century, who liberated much of South America from Spanish rule. The brand was created in 1902 and with no surprise, a brand named after such a powerful figure is blended to match his might.

Created in 1845 by the Catalan Don Jaime Partagas, it is one of the oldest cigar brands. Don Jaime's ability to choose from among the best and finest tobaccos in Cuba, and an instinct for blending and fermenting tobacco, made the brand incredibly successful. Don Jaime is also legendarily credited for introducing the lectors to read and entertain the cigar rollers at the factories.
